Editor's Letter

Hello and welcome to the third edition of Britain, My Nation, the bi-monthly magazine published in support of and to publicise British Nationalism. It is encouraging that our readership is increasing and comments received regarding the magazine have been so encouraging and supportive.

In the last issue of Britain, My Nation I predicted that 2024 will be a very interesting year politically, and although Nationalist election results in May were not earth-shattering, there were some rays of hope that all is not lost. However, it will be necessary for all who call themselves Nationalists to go the extra mile, be it by active involvement with a political party, providing behind the scenes support or by donating to help keep party wheels in motion. Leaflets and election costs aren't free! Elsewhere in this issue we mention that whatever the outcome of the forthcoming general election there will be a huge number of our people seeking an alternative solution to the problems we face and that is why Nationalists must feel very optimistic regarding the part we will play in that.

At Britain, My Nation we try to provide information that will help our readership consider where their loyalties lie and make decisions as to how they can become more involved in our struggle against those that wish to destroy our nation and replace our people. This month we are very pleased to publish the first in a series of articles providing a platform to personalities from one of the Nationalist parties listed in our 'Which Nationalist Party?' section. This month we welcome Kenny Smith, Chairman of The Homeland Party. We are currently lining up several other contributors and so very much look forward to further articles in this series.

Finally, it is sad that the British Royal Mail have yet again felt it necessary to increase postal rates and as prices rise throughout our economy in general, we at Britain, My Nation intend to maintain our purchase price by absorbing this rise until we have no option but to increase it. We do not anticipate this happening in 2024.

Britain, My Nation will only be available by post on subscription and not via the internet or by email. Articles, letters, newspaper cuttings, and general comments for consideration for inclusion in future editions are welcomed, but please include your name and address if sending items (these will not be published, unless advised otherwise). Please send by email to: - britainmynation@yahoo.com

by post to: - The Editor, Britain, My Nation, 10 Washpool,

Britain, My Nation can only be taken forward with help and support of our readers, the like-minded Nationalists within our community and as always I thank you for your support. Remember, we can change things, THERE IS STILL TIME!

In the News

Local council elections took place across the country in early May and as was expected, the Conservative Party did badly, losing almost 500 seats. However, although the Labour Party took the largest number of these, the Lib Dems, Independents and Greens also took many of those council seats. It is said that results at local elections are not always indicative of how voting may turn out in a General Election, however the performance of the Conservatives in recent years has been such that no-one can doubt that they will do very poorly indeed. The Labour Party, despite having little to offer to the British people, are looking to do well out of their demise. Unfortunately the public appetite for politics is at rock bottom as they see all mainstream political parties and politicians as betraying all that Britain stands for, and consequently voter turn-out was very low, with, in most places, less than 50% of the electorate turning out to vote. In many areas where large numbers of non-white voters reside, it appears they have rallied behind the non-white candidates, this being very apparent in London where Sadiq Khan has been voted in as London mayor for the third time, despite overseeing the fall of our once great city as it becomes a magnet for all but the indigenous population, resulting in for example, levels of crime at an all-time high in the city. This is a worrying trend and many political commentators are already predicting the rise of a political party that will cater specifically for the Muslim community and presumably not for any other. Many Nationalists believe that democracy is a waste of time but if we do not take part in the process then those who will not act in the best interests of the British people will take control by default.

We now have a general election to look forward to. This must take place by the 28th January next year at the very latest, (Parliament must be dissolved for a general election no later than on the fifth anniversary of the day it first met, so that will be the 17th December 2024 and then 25 working days are allowed to prepare), and the government must now be planning for that eventuality and looking for a date that is most advantageous for them. Prime Minister Sunak said in January that he expected to go to the polls in the second half of 2024 and after the drubbing in the local elections it is likely to be very late in that period. This will allow him to rally his government and attempt to curry favour with the electorate by introducing a few policies that he knows will prove popular. However, even with the polls predicting a complete melt-down for the Conservatives, little urgency seems to be evident in taking the necessary steps to take back the loss of voter support and history has shown that promises in the past have come to nothing. What we can be sure of is that when an election is announced all mainstream parties will be promising the electorate everything and completely forgetting the lies, deceit and failures of the past. It will also prove an interesting time for Nationalism as none of our existing parties can, at this stage, put in anything but a token challenge. Predictions are though that whichever party is elected to government, and it is likely this will be the Labour Party, the general public will be so disillusioned that they will be seeking an alternative and that will be the time when Nationalism can and will fill that void but only if we work together putting aside the ego-trips and minor policy differences that exist.

A lot of very interesting data is available from the government's Office of National Statistics. A particularly interesting set of statistics have recently become available in their recent publication being Baby Names in England and Wales – 2022. Whereas the British press report that Noah is the most popular boys name with 4,586 so named, they fail to mention that Muhammad or derivations of that name i.e. Mohammed, Mohammad, Muhammed, Mohamed and Mohamad total 7,392 and so make this the most popular name with Muhammad being the most popular boys' name in four out of nine English regions. This occurrence is nothing new however with Muhammad in its various forms having been the most popular boys name since 2011, with the name being prominent for at least the last 20 years. In 2015 The Muslim Council of Britain produced an 80 page study entitled 'British Muslims in Numbers'. This is sub-titled as 'A Demographic, Socio-economic and Health profile of Muslims in Britain drawing on the 2011 Census'. It seems that the MCB are very keen to ensure that their place in Britain is well and truly cemented in and unsurprisingly seem much less interested in integrating into the British way of life giving much credence to The Great Replacement theory. The report, now nearly 10 years old has many interesting sections but one that jumps out provides details of parliamentary constituencies with " ... significant (with 20% or more) Muslim populations", of which 26 were listed! Some Nationalists do not see this to be a threat to our people because the numbers of Muslims is still relatively small. However, Britain, My Nation see this to be very much a threat as the influence this minority has in our society is far and away greater than the size of their population warrants. This can be evidenced on a daily basis by how everyone pussyfoots around when dealing with them. If their influence on society continues at the pace it has over the last 25 years, with a Muhammad on every street, then we have a great deal to be concerned about.

NEWSFLASH – General Election Called!

Minutes before submitting to our printers, it was announced that Prime Minister Sunak had, after a 'long discussion' in an urgent cabinet meeting at 10 Downing Street, held a press conference announcing an election for Thursday 4th July.

Sunak said he had "... spoken to the King earlier today to request the dissolution of parliament ..." allowing for the election. What prompted this decision at this time remains subject to speculation, but it didn't go un-noticed that a government that has overseen the destruction and decay of so much in our once great nation, allowed its leader to make the announcement in the pouring rain without protection ending up looking like a drowned rat (say no more!).

Nationalists, who have been commemorating the anniversary of both the Manchester Arena bombing and the murder of Lee Rigby, will also never forget the men, women and children who have suffered and died at the hands of those who shouldn't have been walking among us in the first place were it not for the traitor politicians who allowed it to happen.

Countryside Matters by O.R.

Despite rural areas not being generally affected by the plight of our urban centres, in respect of immigration and the problems caused by it, all is not well in the countryside. Perhaps the powers that be believe rural communities to be apathetic and are happy just to plod along with their rural existence irrespective of what is foisted upon them. Consequently decisions are often made without the public being totally aware of why.

Recently, in North Wiltshire a 22 mile long stretch of the A3102 road, stretching from Junction 16 of the M4 near Swindon to the A350 in Melksham, via Royal Wootton Bassett and Calne, was identified through the Road Safety Foundation analysis as requiring improvement. Wiltshire Council has subsequently been awarded £6.98million by the Department of Transport to do this. Preliminary work has focused on the cutting back of hedges and trees to 'improve visibility' at various points along the road, particularly at junctions. The council web-site states that "... vegetation being cleared are generally self-seeded bushes, shrubs and trees that encroached on to some of the verge areas that are required for visibility, which can make the road more dangerous for all road users. At this stage, we have no plans for replacement planting of this vegetation, as that would further reduce visibility and further compromise road safety". However, and hopefully the reader will see from the photographs, that the resultant destruction has very little to do with road safety as healthy trees, 10 feet or so from the roadside, are cut down. How this helps with road safety is unknown, but what is known is that the near £7 million would have been far better spent on putting right the huge number of potholes in the roads in the area, a far greater threat to road safety than some trees and bushes. What is also concerning is that, with all the guff about "climate change" and the need to preserve the rain forests etc., the removal of so many trees and bushes was deemed perfectly acceptable and particularly when there is no intention of planting any replacements the natural environment is simply destroyed. Sadly, as always, too many decisions are made by those who have not the slightest idea about the needs of their constituents nor the local environment. The councils and government continue to ride rough shod over all that is good and decent about our once great nation and we must all be wondering where this will end.

How Do We Save Our Decaying Country?

This article continues the theme discussing the problems that years of government mismanagement have caused for our nation and our folk. Britain, My Nation continues to broadly outline what measures need to be taken to reverse this decline in our fortunes and make this country one that we can once more feel pride in and one that is respected again for our achievements.

The last issue referred to immigration as being the main cause of the problems we now face and the remedy was to put a stop to further immigration, repatriate those who should not be here and also cease foreign aid. When this process is in place we can begin to put right the problems faced by our people within our country by reinvesting the billions of pounds saved.

Many Nationalists will be familiar with what is known as the 14 Words, that is, “We Must Secure The Existence Of Our People And A Future For White Children” and this has to be our raison d'être. If we are serious about saving our nation then we have to be serious about ensuring the continuation of our race. The first step in this process is to provide incentives to young people, after educating them, to appreciate that this is a prime reason for our existence and to show there is more to life than pure hedonism. Sadly, social media, politicians and celebrities have poisoned our society into believing that a materialistic and narcissistic existence is the way forward. It isn't. Most of those who have children realise that and although their own lifestyle results in some sacrifice, the joy of seeing your offspring grow and develop cannot be beaten and, of course, this process doesn't last forever.

Not so long ago the traditional British family included a husband and wife and several children. The husband was the breadwinner working to provide a living for the family whilst the wife stayed at home to look after that home and family. Nowadays this traditional idea of family has all but disappeared and it seems no longer possible for a family to survive on the income of just one parent, unless fortunate enough to be very well paid indeed. So what we need are financial incentives to enable a return to this position, with one or other of the parents available to carry out the previously traditional role of the wife, that is, the childcare and the home-making. Sadly these days too many people put their careers and lives first and consequently have children relatively late in life compared to days gone by and then send them off to nursery missing out on the joy of seeing their offspring grow and develop. It can be argued that nursery in itself isn't a bad thing, but what better upbringing can there be than for the child's parents to be very much more involved with nursery complementing that rather than it being a total selfish opt-out for the parents. To enable a return to that process a form of financial family allowance should be provided, an allowance that increases in value for each child a family has, up to, for example, a total of four and on the basis that one parent has full-time employment. The sum required needs to be enough to compensate for one parent not working full-time and needs to be available for the whole of that child's pre-school life and modified thereafter to match changing circumstances relating to schooling.

In hand with this policy, there also needs to be a complete review of and subsequent change to the educational system to ensure that, as well as some of the traditional academic subjects, the curriculum includes subjects to cater for each child's well-being with an emphasis on health and fitness and how to cope with all that they will experience in life, including financial management, home maintenance, childcare, cooking and gardening.

The starting point for a decent society is the creation of children who understand what is valuable in life, other than from a materialistic perspective, and the importance of order and respect. This topic together with more on the changes required in the educational process will be continued in the next issue.

Introducing – Kenny Smith, Leader of The Homeland Party

Let's get serious! I imagine every subscriber to 'Britain, My Nation' cares passionately about our people and this nation. In these pages, we find the words of like-minded souls and seek out the connections that will give us comfort. For too long, the Nationalist movement has languished in obscurity, and the clock ticks endlessly while the enemies of our people continue to feverishly work against our interests. The invasion of doom and gloom has been as prevalent as the physical one assaulting our shores.

Since my teenage years, Nationalism has been the driving force in my life. As a key activist in the BNP, who stood at every kind of election and was a community councillor for 12 years, I was a key member of the team that helped modernise the BNP and make it electable through the use of community politics and a smarter approach, eventually becoming the party's Head of Administration. Sadly, my resistance to Nick Griffin's corruption and deviancy meant I was purged like so many others after 17 years of activism, and the focus on community politics was lost in a few short years.

In the void that followed, charlatans led the well-meaning on street demos, a return to the dark days when the image of the BNP was one of suits in boots engaging in the politics of the street. It's not a winning formula, and it has never done anything but tarnish the image of Nationalism.

A smattering of tiny parties soldiered on, always barely registering any support for parliamentary elections but continuing to rinse and repeat without learning any lessons from history or their recent endeavours. I just could not take it any longer! Community politics works. It gave the BNP 55 district level councillors in just 4–5 years. When it was abandoned, the electorate abandoned them.

The Homeland Party is now just over a year old and has been established to give our people a credible Nationalist party to get behind. Our sensible Nationalist approach with a commitment to community politics has injected energy and enthusiasm back into the Nationalist discourse that would have that great orator, Jonathan Bowden, waxing lyrical were he still alive today.

We were told we would never get registered as a political party, and we did that! We were told you can't get power and control from the liberal progressives, and yet we now have parish and community councillors, and people in a myriad of other influential community and employment roles standing as a bulwark against the evils being directed at our people.

In short order, we have established ourselves with more members, more councillors, and more activism than many of the other longer-established parties combined. With exciting young talent and experienced old heads, our levels of organisation and professionalism have brought many quality people on board, which continues to give us the dynamism lacking elsewhere.

It is time the Nationalist community got serious. Uniting the right is a pipe dream that will not happen through coalitions or alliances. I have tried as others have, but there are those who will forever insist on flogging a dead horse and others who have succumbed to the rewards their clickbait posts and podcasts provide them. Those who genuinely want Nationalism to succeed must recognise which way the wind is blowing and get on board with the Homeland Party now.

Imagine if the community stopped prevaricating and actually got on board with us, taking on roles and responsibilities and helping drive us on. Our brand of sensible Nationalism has already put our enemies in a spin. They have no weapons to combat community politics, and our fresh approach has left them struggling to tarnish us with the same old stereotypes.

The vitality and vigour of the Homeland Party is tangible and real. We are serious about winning. Are you?

If the answer is yes, join us and help us win in the community where you live!

Which Nationalist Party? (1 of 4)

This is the 3rd in the series which provides information on the 17 (an increase of 2) racial and civic (or populist) Nationalist parties we are aware of, and that are available for us to join in Britain. The intention of the series is to provide reader's with information that can enable them to make a judgement on who best to support depending on their own political views. Although something of a challenge it is hoped that many of those listed will put aside minor and petty differences to join with others, strengthening our cause and our appeal to the British public and thereby allowing us to be more competitive in the political arena. The parties are listed in alphabetical order for ease of reference and so not to appear favouring one over the other.

In this issue we provide details of what is required by each party in order to become a member, together with brief updates on party news, with an emphasis on the recent May elections, if a particular party stood candidates. The turnout across the country was very poor with an average turnout of around 35% showing the disillusionment and therefore the lack of trust the British public have with politicians.

Also as mentioned in our last issue we start our series where, each month, we provide a platform to one of the personalities from the one of the Nationalist parties listed. This month on page 8 we are very pleased to introduce Kenny Smith, Leader of The Homeland Party.

British Democratic Party

Membership details: Standard = £25.00. Concessionary (i.e. OAPS, students, those on job seekers allowance, sickness benefit and income support) = £15.00.

Membership restrictions: Applicants should not be less than 16 years old.

Membership benefits: None specified.

The BDP stood several candidates with the best results for any Nationalist party. In Waltham Abbey North ward for Epping Forest District Council in Essex, Julian Leppert who has previously been an elected councillor for both the BNP and the now defunct, For Britain, polled 323 votes, or 22%. Lawrence Rustem for Shepway Ward on Maidstone Borough Council achieved 18% with 452 votes and Christopher Bateman polled 475 votes, 14.5% in Castleden and Crouch ward of Basildon Borough Council. Party chairman Dr Jim Lewthwaite polled 190 votes, 7% for Wyke ward on Bradford Metropolitan District Council

Britain First

Membership details: Standard = £16.00. Concessions = none.

Membership restrictions: None specified.

Membership benefits: Welcome letter, membership card, party member badge, key fob, selection of leaflets.

Nick Scanlon was the BF candidate in the GLA securing over 20,000 votes in total across our capital city but this only equated to less than 1% of the total vote pushing the candidate into 12th of 13 candidates. It could be argued that the media coverage was well worth the effort in standing in the election, but as Sadiq Khan took the platform to make his victory speech he was met by heckling and booing from the BF team. Although the result rankles with Nationalists the lack of discipline shown by the party did it no favours with the British people not wanting to identify with such rowdy behaviour. Consequently it is suspected that any positive publicity previously received would have been countered by this incident. Amanda Peel also stood for the party in the Bablake ward of Coventry City Council achieving 379 votes, 9% of the total.

Which Nationalist Party? (2 of 4)

British Freedom Party

Membership details: Standard = £36.00. Concessions = none.

Membership restrictions: None specified.

Membership benefits: Letter from party leader, member's badge, membership card, Union flag, A3

Magna Carta scroll, membership pen, mini manifesto, recent campaign material.

British Movement

Membership details: None found.

Membership restrictions: As above.

Membership benefits: Not known.

British National Party

Membership details (all rates monthly): Standard = £4.80, £6.00 (family), £9.80 (gold), £11.80 (platinum). Concessions (senior citizen, student, unwaged) = £2.50.

Membership restrictions: 2 year probationary period.

Membership benefits: Membership card, monthly bulletins, British Nationalist publication etc.

For a dormant political party, it was surprising to see the following statement on their website recently, so make of it what you will – “The BNP is the ONLY political party fighting to put the interests of the native British people first in Britain every time. The BNP has strength in numbers”.

English Democrats

Membership details: Standard = £32.00. Concessions (students, OAPs) = £15.00. Gold = £100.00.

Membership restrictions: none specified.

Membership benefits: With Gold membership = annual black-tie dinner, St George medal, party badge, membership card, key fob, annual party reports, copies of party magazine.

The ED's recently signed up to the 'Patriots Alliance' based on the Belmont-Declaration. At a meeting hosted by Dr Teck Khong's ADF Party (Alliance for Democracy and Freedom), others signing were UKIP, Libertarians UK and the UK Free Alliance. This pact is intended to ensure co-operation during elections and is a welcome move albeit all parties signed up are very small and unlikely to stand enough candidates to be in a position to challenge each other. Unable to stand in elections themselves, due to still not being registered with the Electoral Commission, it is good to hear that activists from Patriotic Alternative assisted the ED's campaigning in the recent elections. Three Police and Crime Commissioner elections were contested with party leader Robin Tilbrook achieving 13.2% in Essex, David Dickason, 7.2% in Lincolnshire and Henry Curteis, 10.2% in West Mercia. Council results included 8.3% for Steve Morris in Besses Ward, Bury, 3.8% for Val Morris in Holyrood, Bury, 14.5% for Maxine Spencer in Dearne North, Barnsley, 5.6% for Janus Polenceusz in Dearne South, Barnsley and Tilbrook, 9.2% in the Rural East Ward of Epping Forest.

Heritage Party

Membership details: Standard = £25.00. Concessions = none.

Membership restrictions: Applicants should not be less than 16 years old and will be vetted to ensure no previous involvement with any organisation on their extensive proscribed list!

Membership benefits: None specified.

The party stood 76 candidates in local elections in England this year including 64 candidates at borough and district level, 11 at town parish level and 1 at mayoral level. Results were generally poor but difficult to determine with no update on the party website, at the time of writing, so it can be assumed the party made little impact nor progress.

Which Nationalist Party? (3 of 4)

Homeland Party

Membership details: Standard = £36.00. Concessions = none.

Membership restrictions: Applicants should not be less than 16 years old and not a member of another political party.

Membership benefits: None specified.

For a party that was registered less than a year ago the result achieved by their first ever and only candidate this time, Roger Robertson, was very good indeed. The candidate stood in the Hartley Wintney ward, for Hart District Council resulting in a 13.5% share of the vote with 355 votes.

National Front

Membership details: Standard = £10.00. Concessions = none.

Membership restrictions: 2 year probationary period.

Membership benefits: None specified

National Housing Party UK

Membership details: Standard = £22.00. Concessions (unwaged) = £11.00.

Membership restrictions: None specified.

Membership benefits: None specified.

Party leader John Lawrence was the only NHPUK candidate standing in the elections in the Hollinwood ward for Oldham City Council and achieved 173 votes which was 6.8% of the total.

National Rebirth Party (previously the National Support Detachment)

Membership details: Standard = £36.00. Concessions (Armed Forces member or veteran, applicant under 26 or over 80) = £18.00.

Membership restrictions: None specified.

Membership benefits: None specified.

Much seems to be happening with the organisation of branches and meetings across the country. Despite its Nationalist agenda, the vision of how the party will achieve success is at odds to other parties. For example, the ladder strategy, which most Nationalists espouse, being a strategy where activity begins at local community level and then builds up from that, is deemed as ineffective. The party believes that if the message to our people is strong enough the masses will flock to them and so the top of the ladder will be reached without the need for any necessary groundwork. Additionally the party believes that attempting to 'unite the right' is a waste of time, with existing parties having too many differences for that ever to happen. They believe that a party with a radical way forward will achieve this unification automatically. Unfortunately this approach may alienate many potential members who have believed in those two paths and cause the party to stall before too long. Consequently we watch with interest how the party progresses.

New British Union

Membership details: No fee.

Membership restrictions: None specified.

Membership benefits: None specified.

The party website has suffered several hacking attacks of late but at the time of writing is back online. Gary Raikes, the leader of NBU has also recently suffered a stroke and is now back home after a hospital stay. Britain, My Nation wishes him well and hope he fully recovers as soon as possible.

Which Nationalist Party? (4 of 4)

Patria

Membership details: Standard = £10.00. Concessions = none.

Membership restrictions: None specified.

Membership benefits: None specified.

Patriotic Alternative

Membership details: Standard = £36.00. Concessions = none.

Membership restrictions: Applicants should not be less than 16 years old

Membership benefits: None specified.

PA member Callum Hewitt stood for election as an Independent in the Central and West Bank ward in Halton finishing runner-up with 74 votes, being 11.3% of the total.

Reclaim Party

Membership details: Nothing specified on the website.

Membership restrictions: None specified.

Membership benefits: None specified.

Party leader Lawrence Fox lost his £5,000 deposit after securing just 0.005% of votes in his attempt to become a London Assembly member. Fox has since made it known that with Sadiq Khan being re-elected as mayor he will now be moving out of London.

Reform Party

Membership details: Standard = £25.00. Concessions = none.

Membership restrictions: None specified, but have same proscribed list as Heritage Party.

Membership benefits: None specified.

Leader Richard Tice has been having a hard time from the Nationalist community recently as they respond to his capitulation to demands from Hope Not Hate to remove candidates who have said things that they do not like. Despite much media coverage regarding how popular Reform are becoming at the expense of the Conservative Party election results have proved a mixed bag with their candidate finishing a strong third with 16.8% in the Blackpool South parliamentary by-election in early May, almost defeating the Tories. The party did have a candidate elected to the London Assembly. Openly gay Alex Wilson was the party's lead candidate and received enough of the vote share to be elected. 2 candidates were also elected to Havant Borough Council, Sharon Collings with 430 votes and Vicky Rhodes with 381, each candidate coming third in a three seat election. With Reform taking over the populist mantle from the Brexit Party and then from UKIP it looks likely they will continue to be the pressure valve for civil Nationalists thereby preventing supporters from thinking more radically in considering racial Nationalism as an alternative option.

UKIP

Membership details: Standard = £30.00. Concessions (under 25 or Armed Forces member or veteran) = £10.00.

Membership restrictions: Some left-wing organisation.

Membership benefits: None specified.

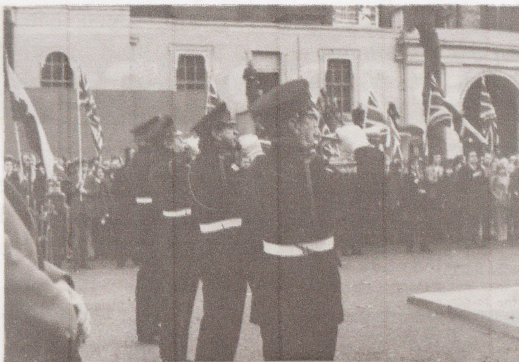

The winner of the recent open contest for a new leader was announced on the 13th of May as Lois Perry who is apparently a respected broadcaster and PR expert. Surprisingly Anne-Marie Waters who for several years was leader of the now disbanded For Britain party, withdrew from the contest, for 'personal reasons'. It remains to be seen if Perry, an attractive young lady, will bring the party back from the doldrums.

The Best of Spearhead Magazine – December 1973 (1)

In this issue we continue this popular feature intended as a tribute to Spearhead magazine and its founder and main editor John Tyndall. Selected extracts are included from, without doubt, the best Nationalist magazine ever produced. Looking back at past issues brings home how the Nationalist movement has seemingly squandered much that had been achieved. In this edition of Britain My Nation we look at pages from Spearhead issue number 71 from December 1973, just over 50 years ago, when we were able to motivate and mobilise huge numbers to march and wave our flags in our capital city, London, to proclaim how proud we were to be British.

It is to be hoped that we will once more see a return to those glory days. Sadly however, London is no longer the bastion of Britishness it once was, being taken over by immigrant communities that have no love for our history, culture or traditions and only love us for what they can bleed us for.

4,000 AT CENOTAPH IS BIGGEST EVER N.F. TURNOUT

Easily the biggest ever turn-out of National Front members and supporters assembled in London for the annual Remembrance Day march on November 11th. NF National Headquarters has been claiming that party membership has doubled during the last year, sometimes perhaps with not everyone believing the claim. On this occasion firm proof was provided of enormous growth. At the same date last year a turn-out of about 1,500 reflected considerable progress from 1971. This year a column which was estimated by the police at close to 4 thousand marched to and away from the Cenotaph then to a big rally in a London theatre.

The march, which was organised by the NF in collaboration with the Remembrance Association, left the Victoria area at 2.30 in the afternoon, with the fine pipe band and big flag column making a stirring spectacle. It proceeded up Victoria Street and Whitehall to the Cenotaph, where a moving ceremony took place.

At the ceremony the NF's leading ex-serviceman, Air Vice Marshal G. Pidcock, CB, CBE, RAF (Ret.) laid a wreath in memory of the Commonwealth war dead, which included the servicemen of Rhodesia and South Africa. Wreaths were also laid by Wing Commander Lewis-Whittam and Squadron Leader J. Harrison-Broadley, DFC, the NF candidate for Hove.

Prayers were then conducted by the Rev. Brian Green. Finally, buglers played a last post before the column moved off.

More people joined the column as it made its way to the meeting place. The theatre was packed to its capacity, with many people being unable to get in. To an impressive backstage display of red, white and blue, with Commonwealth flags as well as Union Jacks held by members of the flag column, short speeches were made by J. Kingsley Read, Roy Painter, Walter Barton, Wing Commander Lewis-Whittam, Martin Webster and John Tyndall, with Alan Smith, NF parliamentary candidate for Camden and Brent, in the chair. The meeting ended in a tremendous display of enthusiasm, with a collection of £1,250.

Central Fund

The National Front has launched a Central Fund for the purpose of meeting its administrative expenses in the fighting of the next General Election, in which it aims to put up 50 candidates. This fund is not to be confused with local branch funds.

Branch funds will aim to raise the required sum for the fighting of their constituency campaigns, i.e. the placing of candidates' deposits, the printing of their election literature and other general expenses.

The Central Fund is to cover the expense of administering the whole election campaign from headquarters and will include the extension of full time secretarial and organisational staff as its main item.

The Central Fund has been set a target of £10,000 a year for the next two years, starting from the 1st June 1973.

Contributions and pledges for the first year, 1973-4, have so far totalled £6,689.53.

We urge all supporters of the National Front to give generously so that we may raise the desired figure or at least get a substantial part of the way towards it. Contributions should be addressed to the National Front, 50 Pawns Road, Croydon, CRO 2QF. Cheques or postal orders should be made out to National Front, No. 2 account.

NF Home Counties Social

NF Head Office has organised a Christmas social which will take place on Saturday, December 22nd, from 7.00 p.m. onwards. The event is being officially organised by the Remembrance Day Association, and details of the location of the venue, which will be in the central London area, will be given on tickets to be issued.

Tickets will be £1.50 each. This will cover an extensive buffet, a disco, a band and a singer. Bar prices will be slightly cheaper than normal public bar prices. A part of the evening will be devoted to singing patriotic songs. This will be a great evening for all ages.

It is regretted that the venue is only able to take 450 people, and so tickets will have to be apportioned to a limited number for each branch or group within the London and Home Counties area. We therefore propose to begin with that 15 tickets will be allocated to each branch and group in the area. Those wishing to attend should approach their local branch or group to obtain tickets.

Please note – no tickets will be sold at the door.

John Tyndall tours N. England

National Front Chairman John Tyndall recently completed a six-day speaking tour of NF branches and groups in the North of England, during which he saw evidence of big growth in the area.

The tour began with a meeting of the Sheffield group. This group is still small but has become stronger than at the beginning of the year, when there was almost no NF activity in Sheffield. At the meeting Mr. Tyndall discussed activities and tactics with local members.

The following night the NF Chairman spoke at a meeting in Leeds, where 60-70 people were present. Leeds is a real success story in 1973; beginning from the same position as Sheffield at the start of the year, it now has a large and rapidly growing membership, including a lot of extremely keen youngsters.

On the third night Mr. Tyndall spoke at a meeting in Harrogate, where over 80 people were present. Harrogate, from weak beginnings a short time ago, has become the strongest and best established branch in Yorkshire, although the town is by no means one of the biggest in the county. Much of this success is due to the highly competent leadership of local organiser Andrew Biron.

From Harrogate Mr. Tyndall journeyed north to Newcastle, where he spoke at the first ever major NF meeting in the North East of England. Here the recent growth of the party has been quite outstanding and has seriously worried local left-wingers. The latter were in force to try and disrupt the meeting. Due to the cowardice of the managements of the County Hotel, Newcastle where the meeting was originally booked, they succeeded in getting it moved from there to a supporter's home, where nearly forty people crowded into a single room to hear the NF Chairman speak. The growth in the Tyneside area from almost nothing a year ago was perhaps the most encouraging feature of the whole tour.

The following night Liverpool was the venue. Again local left-wingers sent mobs to disrupt the meeting and due to the same sort of cowardly premises management succeeded in getting the location of the meeting changed at the last moment. Liverpool NF, after being hindered by internal problems for the last year or so, has become much better organised in recent months and has attracted many new members of first rate quality and keenness.

The final meeting was at Manchester, where 120 people assembled from the city and from surrounding districts. The meeting ended in great enthusiasm with the NF Chairman presenting a special award to Northern organiser Walter Barton from local members as a token of appreciation of his magnificent work for the movement.

PC - Making A Monkey Of Us All

Much of the politically correct nonsense that we have witnessed has become almost a joke amongst normal folk. However, the liberal-left establishment and their ilk seem to get worse by the day in that they take offence from words and phrases that most of us use in all innocence on a regular basis. Not only that but also they create even more nonsense that they expect us to use and get extremely upset if we don't tow the line, an example being the use of pronouns. They all seem to favour minority groups whilst essentially oppressing the ordinary white indigenous British majority. It is to be hoped that with most of us seeing through this ridiculous false offensiveness the problem will go away, but we have a problem in that the media and political figures encourage this as though they are the most virtuous people on the planet and upset no-one.

Britain My Nation will continue to highlight some of the examples we come across and hopefully one day will see a return to common sense and a British elite with thicker skins and something more important to worry about and spend their time on. Readers are invited to send in any examples they think would be of interest in this feature (for contact details see page 3).

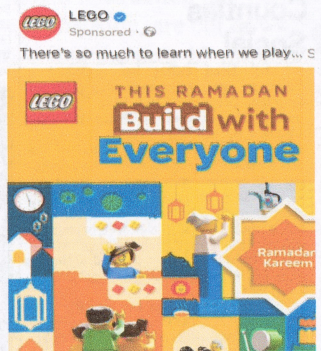

LEGOLAND – was, some time ago, found guilty of disability discrimination after presenting a disabled worker with a commemorative Lego model of himself with his arm in a sling. On the subject of Lego the advertisement, as shown on the right, turned up on Facebook several weeks ago – a further example of how the establishment pander to the minorities.

DANGEROUS SPORTS – Abbeyfield School in Wiltshire banned children from playing football and rugby in the playground as it was deemed too dangerous.

HOT COFFEE – A customer who burnt her mouth on a cup of coffee sued McDonalds because the contents were hot.

TRIPPING – A woman fell over a child in a shop and successfully sued the shop for her injuries – The child was her own!

The madness continues. We look forward to receiving more examples please!

A Time In History

This regular feature lists some events in British history which took place on dates during the months covered by this publication.

June

1st 1946 – The first television licences, costing £2, are issued.

6th 1944 – D-Day; the invasion of Europe by a huge invasion fleet crossing the English Channel.

11th 1488 – Battle of Sauchieburn; King James III of Scotland is defeated and afterwards murdered, succeeded by his son, James IV.

13th 1981 – Blanks are fired at the Queen in the Mall on her way to Trooping of the Colour.

17th 1579 – Francis Drake claims 'Nova Albion' (California) in the name of Queen Elizabeth, according to a brass plaque discovered near the Golden Gate Bridge.

18th 1815 – The Battle of Waterloo. Napoleon's army and political career are ruined; a great victory for Blucher and Wellington.

21st 1955 – Ruth Ellis, found guilty of murder, is sentenced to death.

23rd 1894 – Edward VIII is born at Richmond.

July

1st 1867 – Canada becomes a British dominion.

1st 1987 – One of the Moors murderers' victims' bodies is found after a search on Saddleworth Moor, assisted by Ian Brady.

6th 1931 – The census result shows that the population of the United Kingdom (44.8 million) is almost at a standstill.

13th 1705 – Titus Oates, the conspirator who fabricated a Catholic plot to assassinate Charles II, dies.

14th 1867 – Alfred Nobel first demonstrates dynamite at Merstham Quarry, Redhill.

20th 1957 – Harold Macmillan makes his 'never had it so good' speech at Bradford.

26th 1945 – Labour win the General Election with a majority of 173 seats; Clement Attlee, the new Prime Minister, embarks on a programme of nationalisation and social reform.

28th 1586 – The first potatoes arrive in Britain, brought from Colombia to Plymouth by Sir Thomas Harriot.

Dear Editor

Thank you for your latest edition of Britain, My Nation. Subscribing as I do to all of the Nationalist magazines currently available, I think your magazine slots nicely into the differing styles of those I receive. I also appreciate your efforts in bridging the gaps that exist in Nationalism and, although admirable, I think you face an uphill struggle to unify the movement despite the successes there were in, for example, forming the National Front in the 1960's. The example they provided proves that where there is a will to do something for the better good, then anything is possible. Keep up the good work!

Yours sincerely, K.G., Leeds.

Dear Robert

During WW2, Britain used the natural barrier that is the English Channel, to prevent a German invasion of the country taking place and its strategic importance played a large part in our national survival and eventual victory. Why can't we do the same today with the dinghies? 350 illegal immigrants on 7 boats arrived British shores on 1 day in the week I write this letter, What would those who sacrificed their lives, to preserve our nation, think of our spineless and cowardly leaders today?

Yours sincerely, Paul Sheehan, Coventry.

Dear Sirs

Your article 'The Legacy of the Beatles' proved very interesting reading providing a refreshing take on what most people see as a very positive period in the entertainment history of Britain. I, like your editor, have been a fan of the Beatles ever since first hearing them but now look at their alternative agenda in a very different light, even though the music will always resonate with me. I am sure there will be many who take offence at such an appraisal of the most innovative and successful pop group that Britain has ever seen, a group that we are unlikely ever to see the like of again, however it has to be admitted that their general influence was, in retrospect, very unsavoury. I enclose a small donation for the continuation of your work as I am sure that you are running on a shoestring budget, so hope it helps towards your costs.

Yours faithfully, Name and Address Withheld by Request.

(Editor's reply – Thank you very much indeed for your donation that was very far from 'small'! It is very much appreciated and will certainly help with the continuation of our work).
